CERTIFIED INVESTMENTS—AND WHAT IS BACK OF THEM

A certified investment is one offered to the public by Chester R. Bunker and Company as a money-making opportunity.

We certify an investment only after we have investigated the proposition, the properties, the men controlling and managing them and their policies and recommend it for safety, profit and permanency.

The certification of an investment is made by Chester R. Bunker and Company of Fort Worth. Chester R. Bunker and Company is an organization of financial responsibility, composed of men who have spent years in the investment field in Oklahoma, Nevada, Wyoming, California and Texas and are thoroughly familiar with the Texas oil fields and the great industrial opportunities surrounding them. The study of investments is made with great care and by experts.

My first financial training was secured in New York City and San Francisco in leading financial houses. I acquired development experience in Nevada, Utah and Wyoming in the mining and oil industries. In Utah and Wyoming I founded and published financial newspapers whose news and statements were never questioned.

After service in the army during the war I came to Texas and founded the Texas Oil Ledger, the leading oil investor's newspaper in the United States and the Ledger Daily Oil News Service, a complete daily wire report from Texas and Louisiana oil fields. These publications grew until I had the largest newsgathering staff in Texas with trained scouts in the field and market experts covering the oil centers of Texas and the oil sharesmarket in New York City. News in the Texas Oil Ledger was authentic, uncolored news, written by staff men and trained scouts in the field and the publication has been acknowledged as the leading oil newspaper in the United States. The reports from market and field carried in the Daily Ledger Oil News Service became the standard with which all reports were compared. They were the most complete and reliable published and were never questioned by operators or investors. They were accepted as official.

Paul Cottrell and G. A. Henry, associated with me, have had wide experience in organization and the gathering and publishing of investment facts in Oklahoma and Texas. Paul Cottrell gained his first oil experience in the Oklahoma fields and was at Electra, Texas, when oil was first discovered. He has been staff correspondent and city editor of the Daily Oklahoman, the leading newspaper of Oklahoma. As executive secretary of the Federal Food Administration in Oklahoma he organized the food control machinery of that state. After service in the Army he came to the Texas fields and spent six months as a scout and writer of oil news of Ranger, Burkburnett, Desdemona and the newer fields. He was made news editor of the Texas Oil Ledger and left the Ledger Oil Publications as editor-in-chief when Chester R. Bunker and Company was organized.

G. A. Henry has been a newspaper editor and feature writer for leading newspapers in Oklahoma and Texas for many years. With Fort Worth as his headquarters he has followed the oil development of Texas since the opening of the Burkburnett and Ranger fields. Soon after the founding of the Texas Oil Ledger Mr. Henry was made special investigator of oil companies offering stock to the public. He inspected the properties of those companies and studied the management and his reports were accepted as unbiased and accurate. Following this work he became editor of the Ledger Daily Oil News Service and handled all the reports of the large staff of scouts in field and market. For many months he handled daily wire reports from the Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana oil fields and superintended the daily checking of official development and production maps, thereby becoming thoroughly familiar with the details of the Texas oil industry.

With these men I have associated a large staff of field men, men and investigators. The organization is familiar with every phase of oil development in Texas and the men in it have established country-wide reputations for accuracy and integrity.

A certified investment is one that my organization has passed upon in every detail and recommends for purchase to our clients. We know the fields and the markets. A Chester R. Bunker and Company certified investment is an opportunity for you to make money.
